

Madison High School

RN: But Madison High School, that my kids went to, my son was an all-state football player. He also was a Duke grad. His [David Shelby's] father-in-law, Norm Chaudet, was the athletic director of James Madison High School. Bill Escobar was the football coach. Clinton Hannah was the basketball coach. And I'm trying to think of who the baseball coach was. But anyway. Madison and Marshall were the big rivals, the big rivals. Madison was normally better in basketball, and Marshall was normally better in football, but not always. But not always. So, it was a very interesting time.

SA: How has Madison High School changed since then?

RN: Well, if you want me to guess, I'll guess it's twice the size. Madison - the community was not that big. So the high school has been enlarged several times since then. And I don't have any idea how many students now are in Madison High School, but I'll bet over a thousand.
